

MR. STARBUCK, THE TILLIE AND IVES.
BACK IN THE COMMODORE'S HANDS AFTER A BRIEF BUT INTERESTING ABSENCE.

The assignee of Henry S. Ives & Co. said yesterday that he would probably have a statement of the affairs of the firm ready to-day. He declined to make known the results of the trial balanced obtained a day or two ago. He also refused to state the terms of the party charter for the yacht Tillie, which is now in the hands of the former owner, W. H. Starbuck.

The American Yacht Club has been without a flagship since Commodore Starbuck sold the Tillie to Henry S. Ives, and it will naturally rejoice that the interval before the launching of the new vessel being built by the Commodore has been filled by an opportunity accident. His pennant will float more proudly perhaps, as the squadron follows the Tillie once more, and the story of her brief absence is told again. Henry S. Ives considered a yacht one of the necessary properties in his impersonation of the successful financier. Membership in a fashionable Brooklyn club and an elegantly furnished house, which his assignee finds to be in a sister's name, were his side-lights. A yacht he must have, and the Commodore of the American Yacht Club was waiting for just such a buyer. The Tillie was sold to Mr. Ives for $25,000, of which $25,000 was paid in cash, and the balance secured by Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton stock. When the price of that stock was offered down not long ago, the Commodore lost no time in calling the notary public, and as the law had not been breached, he obtained a mortgage on the yacht for the unpaid $6000.

He has now chartered the Tillie for the rest of the season, and as a matter of course the assignee and his assignee-partner-to-be date from the failure of Ives & Co. The unknown terms were undoubtedly liberal, for Assignee Cromwell confessed that the yacht was eating his heart out. The sailors of the club are still greater, after a hard day's work, to sum up the transaction something like this: "The Commodore sold the Tillie, got $25,000 in cash, Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton stock to the amount of $60,000, and all well, here we go; he has now got the yacht."

It was said yesterday that the assignee received several bids before letting the yacht to Mr. Starbuck, and that the other bidders were not satisfied with the distinctness that the mortgage did not influence the assignee. It was generally presumed, Wall Street, in consequence of these statements, that "righteous equities" of Mr. Ives would probably be preserved.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE MARKETS.

FEATURES OF NEW YORK DEALINGS.

The wheat market showed the smallest number of transactions in the Produce Exchange last week, the lowest seen for a long time. The pit was at times dead and but little more than 1,000,000 bushels of aggregate changed hands during the day. The stagnant market was due to the marked advance in cereals in the West on all cereals. Cash wheat was steady without change. The exports reached 900,000 bushels. Wheat options opened steady but fell to 4 cents, then rallied to 4 1/2 cents, closing steady at 4 1/2 cents. August closing steady at the best. The closing prices were: August $1.10, September 31 1/2, October 60 1/2, November 65 1/2, December 70 1/2, January 80 1/2, February 85 1/2, March 90 1/2, April 95 1/2, May 100 1/2, June 105 1/2, July
